My funeral policy

Your policy comes into being when we, or someone authorised by us, receives your acceptance form (on the back of this page) and the first premium for your policy. Your acceptance form and the policy provisions on this page are a complete summary of your policy.

The life insured

This is the person whose life is insured under your policy. This is you and anyone you include as your family or extended family, and in whom you have an insurable interest.

The start date for the life insured

This is the first day of the month in which we, or someone authorised by us, receives the first premium for the life insured. That's when death cover for an accidental death starts, as well as the waiting period for a natural (non-accidental) death for the payment of the full benefit. During a waiting period, premiums must be paid, but policy benefits cannot be claimed.

Children included as immediate family must be under the age 22, children who are permanently disabled and totally dependant on you may be included at any age, and children who are unmarried and full-time students at an education institution approved by us may be included if they are under the age of 25. Extended family, including a spouse or children included as extended family must be under the age of 100.

When cover for children stops

Cover for children stops when they turn 22, for full-time students (described above), it stops when they turn 25, and for disabled children (described above), it does not stop at any specific age. For a still-born child, the deathbenefit will be paid only if the birth takes place after 26 weeks of pregnancyand is not self-induced.

Maximum funeral cover

When a person takes out funeral insurance with us, the total funeral cover for that person under all individual and group policies with us may not be more than the following maximums; R10 000 if the funeral insurance is taken outwhen the person is less than 6 years old, R25 000 if it is taken out when theyare 6 or older, but younger than 18, R50 000 if it is taken out when they are 18 or older, but younger than 65, and R20 000 if they, are 65 and older. Any coverabove the maximum automatically falls away.

Premiums are paid monthly

Your insurance premium must be paid before the end of each month, and provides the death cover for that month. The premium pays for your cover only, not for any investment or cash value. Premiums are not refunded if your policy end for any reason. Any joining and other fees that you pay under a groupscheme are not part of the premium. If a premium is not paid on time, and remains unpaid for another 15 days, your policy ends automatically. If, within 3 months of your policy ending, we again receive a premium, we may reinstate your policy and new waiting periods would then apply. Depending on your plan chosen commission will be 15% - it's included in your monthly premium for your intermediary.
